The cornerstone ceremony provided the occasion for editorials in The Chicago Tribune, The Chicago Daily News and the Chicago Sun-Times congratulating the University and the Law School. The Tribune spoke of the Law School as "among the best two or three in the country" and of the teaching methods, research and "eagerness to teach and to learn that have given the school its special flavor." The Daily News stated that Chancellor Kimpton deserved the thanks of the whole community for his "successful efforts to create this new law center. It will be a fitting home for a great institution." The Sun-Times, pointing out that "it takes more than a physical plant and a desirable location to make a law school great, as the U. of C. Law School is," stressed, among the "ingredients for success," "the sort of service that has been rendered by a topflight faculty of recognized legal scholars."
